Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's 3 3 Vegetable Compound has proved 3 worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health never forget to tell during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter,"—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, B.F.D., Graniteville, Vt. No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and un-qualified endorsement. No other medfcine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Dalhart prides itself on its eduentional facilities and advantages and they are unsurpassed even in the large cities of the state and country. Many cattlemen have located their families ular government laws has wrought a schools. All the congregations are represented with handsome churches. The business houses are marked by modernity. Plate glass, brick, stone and steel form the construction of the principal blocks and good sidewalks are found throughout the town, in residence and business sections alike. The streets are graded and kept clean and well sprinkled.

Dalhart's hotels always win commendation from visitors, most of whom re surprised to get such accommodations in a city the size and age of this

The postoffice receipts of the town afford one of the best bacometers of growth and, these, like the growth in scholastic population, doubling and prebling in a few years, attest the wonderful, steady growth of this new city of the plains. Climate and Soil,

Climate, soll and moisture, the trin-fty of factors which determine the value of any section as an agricultural proposition, are as continuously repsented in this section as in any other the great southwest. It is said of California that the real estate agents sell "climate" ar $1900 the acre and throw in the land. In this part of Texas better land is sold for $15 to $20 an acre, and a better climate than is that of California.

Through endless ages the grass and other vegetation have grown undisturbed over the endless reaches of this high plateau, to decompose in winter and in the economy of nature's evolution, to create a soil rich beyond comare-a more abiding source of wealth pare—a more abiding source of wealth than mine or factory; veritable "heds of gold." The richest mine is soon depleted; factories may be destroyed, but the wealth in the rich soil of the Texpanhandle is inherent and inexhaustible

Farming Successful.

The average annual rainfall, which ientifically cultivaced, has proved sufficient for the production of the finest crops, is augmented, usually by sufficient snowfall to greatly aid the scientific tillage of the soll, is making thousands of acres of panhandle land into splendld homes for good citizens throughout the panhandle and particularly about Dalhart.

June is the chief summer month in crops and ripening fruits. Here the summer sun gets in its best work eight hours a day. The heat, at no time op-pressive, owing to the altitude, works the wonderful magic of nature, and crops grow and ripen under its rays flowers beneath the magician's wand. Summer is the great producer of wealth hereabouts, and few are the uplaints against the heat. The delightful nights compensate for whatever heat may be experienced during the day. Cattle Have Not Suffered. With the coming of the farmer, the cattle industry has in no wise suffered except in the size of the herds and extent of the ranges I. fact there are now in nearly every county in this region fully as many cattle as during the early days of the cattle barons.

Here, there are none of the extremes that make nearly every other widely advertised climate disagreeable at some season of the year. To the young it offers a future that promises to be rich in opportunities, and to the mid-dle aged, the stability of its present as the sand is extracted. Since the water rises from its 120 foot depth to within 20 feet of the surface and because the drill was perneating water bearing strata when stopped, it is thought that further drilling would result in a flowing well. Some claim that Plainview is located upon a vast underground river and that its lateral confines may be narw, but the presence of a 40 foot clay strata above the water serves to refute the idea that the well is sunk into the bed of a former surface tream.

Other wells which are to be sunk at once in other places will put this question to the test. A well that flows over two million gallons a way was never fed by West Texas rainfall.
